Rock Talk Studio was built by Chas Ferry and Jenny Redding to produce music and dialog for their publishing and Record company. Recently Chas has decided to make the studio available to a small group of select clients.

Chas was the head engineer at Cherokee Studios for over 10 years working with artists like David Bowie, Stanley Clark, Crosby Stills and Nash, and many others.

He also worked with Christopher Franke of Tangerine Dream for 10 years. During that time, Chas was involved with the music production of a wide variety of films and television productions ranging from Babylon 5 to Big Brother.

Recently Chas and Jenny produced music for the film Fields of Fuel which won the audience award for Best Documentary at the Sundance Film Festival.
